Progress in Palestine.

The progress which has been made in Palestine during the last twenty-five years is especially evident in the erection of many new buildings. In Jerusalem, inside the town, ruined houses have been restored or rebuilt. Outside the old town are entirely new suburbs, the extension being made especially towards the west. The Jews have formed among themselves building societies, which have erected long barracks like buildings adapted for several families. The number of dwellings during the last twenty-five years has been trebled. Bethlehem conveys the impression of a newly built town. In Jaffa the town wall has been demolished, the ditch filled up, and a number of new houses and magazines, even palatial buildings have been erected. So also in the gardens of Jaffa many new houses have been erected, and to the south and north of the town complete Arabic suburbs, mostly by settlers from Egypt. In Ramich, also, new houses are seen; still more in Kaifa. Nazareth has increased in size, and looks as if it had been rebuilt. Tiberias also has its new houses; in Jenin new military arsenals have been erected, as also in Nablus, along with a fine new barracks. In the latter place the once lonely valley toward the east has assumed quite a homely aspect, and in the town are many new private buildings, and also a new khana. There are also the new school, the Roman monastery and the buildings of the Protestant Mission. In Bethlehem a new barracks and arsenal have been erected. Through the schools and the increasing trade the working people have acquired greater style and taste, and the newer houses are thus mostly a great improvement on the old—not the oldest, which, as a rule, are well built. Nearly all the houses have now glass windows, a rare thing twenty years ago.

STRONG WRITING.—The papers of the far west are peculiar in their style, and somewhat reckless in their assaults on individuals. In a recent number of an Arizona paper we find the following:

"Pinhead Hughes—stand up—you are a cowardly, sneaking criminal and a blackmailing thief. You talk of prosecuting any one for libel! Why, you have had chance after chance for the past five years, during which time you have repeatedly been branded with crime, in public and private, in writing and print. You should to-day be wearing a striped suit and occupying a cell in the penitentiary at Yuma. If you will only start a libel suit, and get your crimes in shape before a court, we may succeed in landing you where you belong. And you can bet your sweet scented life that there won't be any compromise in the case. You are a criminal and should be a convict, and if you just get us warmed up we'll convict you."

Truth Prevails, and Time Tells!

Arguments to defend self-interest, and reasons based upon statements, do not by any means convey a fact.

FACTS!

must be practically demonstrated, and time is the great factor to bring about the required result.

If any of our competitors and would-be manufacturers tell you in flaring advertisements we manufacture our own goods and, therefore, sell cheaper than anybody else, ask them the following questions:

1. WHY IS IT THEY NEVER MAKE A SUCCESS IN ESTABLISHING A PERMANENT TRADE?

2. WHAT ARE THEY MOVING THEIR STORES FOR FROM ONE PLACE TO ANOTHER?

3. WHY DON'T THEY STAY WHERE SUCCESS HAS BEEN ACHIEVED?

Customers don't care whether we manufacture our own Clothing or not, as long as we can furnish them with a line of goods superior in fit and general make up at lower figures than any of our competitors.

The steady increase of our business speaks louder than mere words.

All our Clothing is manufactured by us under his personal supervision!

If any bargain is in the market, he is there to secure it! The ready cash is always at his disposal!

We buy our material direct from the producer!

We do not buy for one, but for many stores in large quantities, and thus are certain of the Lowest Price!

We sell direct to the consumer for Cash, and do not contract bad debts which have to be made up large profits!

We return the money if Goods do not give satisfaction!

WHY, OF COURSE, THESE ARE REASONS ENOUGH WHY IT IS THAT WE SELL LOWER THAN ANY OTHER HOUSE.

1. We have demonstrated the fact of our success by a constant increase of our stock, and by the constant envy of our would-be competitors.

2. We have demonstrated the fact of our permanence by increasing the facilities for selling in proportion as the number of our customers increased, and that we need now so much room and moved to larger quarters, is as much as a beam in the eye of our competitor.

3. We stay where we have made our success, in the building corner of Water and Main streets, in the block, the name of which has become a by-word in every household in the country—"CHEAP CHARLEY'S CORNER."

4. Although through with No. 1, 2 and 3, we add a 4, and are ready to go on till 13, 14, 15. Now under No. 4 we will explain some of the rules which guide us in business and which added to our success:

A—Before all we attend to our own affairs, even so far as to write out our own advertisements—never allow anybody else to do it for us; believing ourselves able to manufacture them, as we manufacture our own clothing. B—We never allow stock to grow old on our hands, and to enable us to keep it fresh assort'd at all time, we must do a certain amount of business. Now if we open a new branch in a town which proves not to be able to secure us that much trade, we move our stock to another place where we do find it. Sometimes we make a mistake in selecting the right town, but that cannot be helped. Among so many good towns in the west must be al o some poor ones, like among so many precious good stones, it happens once in the while to find one that is not worth taking notice of.

We defy any body to falsify the above facts.

By order of the committee JAMES C. LAKE, Chairman

To reassure those of our Democratic friends who are nervous concerning the physical condition of possible presidential candidates, we hasten to say that recent bulletins agree in stating that both Mr. Tilden and Mr. Seymour "never were in better health."

THE Democrats are the most forgiving set of followers in the world. They have freely forgiven Mr. Trumbull for calling them "mostly traitors," and are willing to vote for him for governor in spite of everything he has done in opposition to them. They are truly a most amiable crowd.

Will some of the Democratic editors—those whom Mr. Trumbull spoke of as "mostly traitors"—please explain the true inwardness of the McArdle case, in which the present Bourbon candidate for governor of Illinois bagged a fee of $10,000? The people are anxious to know the whole history of the matter.

Those prophets who feigned to believe that Grant would be forever buried by his failure to receive the nomination at Chicago plainly reckoned without their host. The journey of the silent soldier through Wisconsin has been one continued ovation, from the time he entered the state until his arrival at Green Bay on Friday evening. He creates more enthusiasm by his mere presence than any other man can by all the arts of oratory.

AND now come surmises concerning possible dark horses at Cincinnati among which Blue Jeans Williams is mentioned. One report says that several county and district conventions in Kentucky, Alabama and Arkansas have instructed their delegates to vote for him, and that he will have the support of the anti-Hendricks men in his own state. And why would not Blue Jeans make a representative Democratic candidate? He is a Bourbon of the Bourbons, who thinks it a crime to learn anything that is new or forget anything that is old. No man would more fitly represent the Democratic idea.

The Chicago Journal recalls the following reminiscence:

Lyman Trumbull was a Senator while Abraham Lincoln was President. In a conversation with a friend one day, in 1863, Mr. Lincoln, speaking of the advantages of his position, remarked, "I have three great troubles to bother me—one is the war in the South, the other is Horace Greeley in New York, but the worst part of all is Trumbull in the Senate." The South wants to capture the Government by war, Greeley wants to capture the rebels with paper bullets, but Trumbull wants to capture everything for himself, and is a constant trouble in my side, worrying me about appointments."

STORRS SPEAKS.

The Republicans held a meeting in Chicago on Saturday night, at which Emery A. Storrs made a speech. Among other good things Mr. Storrs said:

"They needed to carry the state of New York. They could do it. The man never lived who had the hardihood to prefer against Chester A. Arthur any suspicion of official dishonesty or incompetency. He had differences with the administration—differences of judgment—but they were settled and acted honorably. If Mr. Arthur had had one man who honored and admired him more than another it was John Sherman, Secretary of the Treasury. He declined to do certain things, and was removed therefor, and there was no reason to ask who was right or wrong in what was purely a matter of judgment. There could not be found a man more able in organization, more skillful as an executive officer when the strain of the campaign comes, than Mr. Arthur, and it was for this reason that the speaker seconded his nomination. He thought that there might be danger in New York, and that if the 'Old Guard' could be brought out there the success of the ticket would be assured. The nomination would bring out Senator Conkling and other leading New Yorkers working for the ticket because their friends were on it, and because they liked Garfield."

They could beat Trumbull as easy as rolling off a log [laughter]. He was a mere reminiscence [loud laughter]. He belonged to a former generation, and the present generation knew him not. When no quit being a republican he passed out of the memory of mankind [laughs of laughter]. The democratic party, attempting to resurrect him, were running him on the record he achieved as a republican. He had done nothing since he left off being a republican [laughter]. There was nothing in the world so troublesome as quarreling with one's own history. They could beat Trumbull no matter whom the Democrats put in nomination for President. They could carry the state for Garfield and Arthur because the party believed in them, because the party was solid, because there would be no halting because it was the solid determination of every member of the ranks to do his duty for the party.

THE Atlanta (Ga) Constitution reports a conversation between ex Senator Gordon and General Robert Toombs, in reference to the nomination of Garfield We make an extract:

"Gordon, what do you think of Garfield's nomination?" asked General Tombs of General Gordon.

"He is a strong man—one of the strongest men in the party with the exception of Washburne."

General Toombs—I think so myself, but I didn't know the d—d fools had so much sense as to nominate a man like him.

General Gordon—That is the trouble with them. They have too much sense in campaigning.

The Norfolk Virginian, a Democratic paper, says that the Republican nomination is one of the strongest the convention could have made, and it adds:

"The contest before us is no child's play, let us prepare ourselves, by the selection of a leader who will carry into the fight the solid array of the Democratic party."

The St Louis Post Dispatch, a Democratic paper, says:

Only fools under-rate the strength of the antagonist. In politics those who fool themselves are worse than those who fool others. Garfield's nomination was, under the existing circumstances, a great, good, lucky piece of fortune to the Republican party. Garfield means union and harmony. Garfield means the entire Republican party. Garfield means the hearty support of the Hayes Administration. Garfield means an absolutely united Republican party.

TRUMBULL FOR GOVERNOR

Ex Senator Lyman Trumbull has been nominated as the Bourbon candidate for Governor of Illinois, and has accepted the nomination. Previous to his nomination, Mr. Trumbull regarded the Convention with a denunciation of Mr. Garfield personally, which, because uncalled for by circumstances and unjustified by the facts, can only be accounted for by the natural ill temper of Mr. Trumbull, and his bitterness to all other successful men. He is a cold blooded, friendless man, an enemy to all mankind not serving him, and a special hater of everybody in public life.

Though a man of ability he was an able to compete in the section of the State where he lived with his Democratic rivals. He was envious jealous, and ill natured and at last he was elected to the Supreme Court,—an office which was at the service of anybody who would take it, and which he resigned after a brief service. He was in an overwhelming Democratic district, and, in the only candidacy he attempted as a Democrat, he was defeated at the polls.

After quarreling with every Democrat in the State he bolted in 1854 the Democratic nomination for Congress, and announced himself as an independent anti-Nebraska Democrat. The Whig party in that district was in a hopeless minority, and the infant Republican organization had not extended that far south. The anti-slavery people of that section, however, supported Trumbull as an independent Democrat, and he was elected to Congress.

When the Whig anti-Nebraska Legislature met in January following the opposition found themselves in a majority of one or two, for the first time in twenty years. Five of the anti-Nebraska members refused to vote for Mr. Lincoln for Senator because he was a Whig, and those voting for Trumbull, who still claimed to be a "Democrat," but an anti-slavery one, he was eventually elected Senator. In all this bolt he was chiefly actuated by personal hatred toward the Democratic leaders, and especially against Douglas.

He went to the Senate, where he at once put himself in personal antagonism to Douglas, and, infested by his unexpected elevation to the Senate, aspired to the Presidency. Consequently he soon became jealous of Mr. Lincoln, who in a few years had become a popular estimation a probable candidate for the Presidency. The nomination and election of Mr. Lincoln in 1860 were far more annoying to Mr. Trumbull than they were to Douglas, whom Lincoln defeated. The latter was a warm-hearted supporter of the President elect, while Trumbull was a cold, cynical, envious, discontented intriguer. Mr. Trumbull was during that session of Congress, which expired with Lincoln's inauguration, one of that body of Senators who were opposed to a war for the preservation of the Union, and it was reported that he sought to get rid of slavery by letting the slave States go, taking their slaves with them. They preferred a dissolution of the Union to a war, and the perpetuation of slavery in a separated Republic to an undivided Union such as Mr. Lincoln hoped for, "all free." During the several weeks of the session of the Senate following the inauguration of Mr. Lincoln, Douglass, representing the views of President Lincoln, fired away at this class of politicians, and pointedly at Trumbull, and challenged them with being hostile to President Lincoln in his efforts and purpose to maintain the Union at all hazards.

The firing at Fort Sumter aroused the country, and showed how little the great people were in sympathy with the cowardly cabal in Congress, and how universally they were in sympathy with President Lincoln. Mr. Trumbull then, following the rising National tide, became an intense republican in vote and speech.

He became a sort of legal adviser to Congress, as he was an able and able lawyer. Every objection urged by the democrats to any war measure was overruled by Trumbull, who was not in the least troubled by any scruples as to the constitutional rights of states or of persons. The only constitution he recognized in those days, and for years after, was the power of the sword and the will of the major

We make an extract:

Garfield's nomination was, under the existing circumstances, a great, good, lucky piece of fortune to the Republican party. Garfield means union and harmony. Garfield means the entire Republican party. Garfield means the hearty support of the Hayes Administration. Garfield means an absolutely united Republican party.

Mr. Trumbull was the author, or at least the official sponsor, for all these years of radical legislation, and if there be any democrat in Illinois or in the country who desires to know how far human ingenuity and legal ability may be applied to crush out every semblance of "home rule" and state rights, and how this can be done by mere act of congress, such democrat has only to read the record of the reconstruction legislation of which Lyman Trumbull was the author. And now the same gentleman regulates the democratic ears with declarations that the restoration of the democratic party is essential to protect the integrity, freedom, and independence of the sovereign states!

Mr. Trumbull, after the election of 1860, had come to hate the republican party and republican leaders as strongly as he had hated his old democratic associates, they, too, had overlooked him; they had sought presidential candidates elsewhere and had neglected him, so he prepared to return to the democratic party, and thought that perhaps in 1872 he might be nominated.

He was strongly represented at Cincinnati, and confident of the nomination, but Greeley captured the convention, and Trumbull was defeated and dropped.

Since that time he has been at work seeking recognition in the Democratic party. All kinds of work has he done. From giving opinions that Garfield had lawfully captured the state of Maine, to making speeches in the bar rooms of Chicago for local candidates, he has been willing to do anything to win the favor of the Democratic party, which he formerly deserted. He has now accepted the post of leader of the "forlorn hope" of the party and with $5,000 salary grab pay in his pocket he begins the campaign by denouncing Garfield as a corruptor.

Though a man of ability he was an able to compete in the section of the State where he lived with his Democratic rivals. He was envious jealous, and ill natured and at last he was elected to the Supreme Court,—an office which was at the service of anybody who would take it, and which he resigned after a brief service. Terrible Disaster on Long Island Sound.

NEW YORK, June 12, 9 30 a m—The steamers were in collision last night on Long Island Sound, and the present took fire and sank. The passengers who were rescued are scattered along the Long Island shore. A Boston dispatch says there are reports in that city of considerable loss of life by the sinking of the Narragansett.

NEW YORK, June 12, 11 a m—The steamers in collision belonged to the same line. The Narragansett was on her regular trip from New York to Stonington, and the steamer Stonington was returning to New York. The collision occurred about 11 15 p.m., off the Connecticut river. The Narragansett took fire and sank in four fathoms of water. The passengers from both steamers were transferred to the steamship City of New York, of the Fall River line to Boston, and they arrived in New York at 1 15 this morning. It is impossible to ascertain at present the loss of life. Two bodies, however, have already been recovered.

STONINGTON, CONN., June 12—The steamer Stonington arrived at 6 30 this a.m. with about fifty survivors from the Narragansett. The bow of the former was stove in nearly to the water line. She struck the Narragansett at 11 10 on the starboard side, forward of the wheel house. The shock bursted the gas tank and in fifteen minutes the Narragansett was on fire and soon sank. The steamers New York and Providence came to their assistance, and all the boats and life rafts of the four steamers were lowered and put in service. Two hours elapsed before the last passenger was picked up. Most of the passengers were transferred to the City of New York.

The passengers say the officers and crew of the Narragansett behaved with great coolness and nerve.

On the arrival of the Stonington the village was aroused, and men and women hastened with clothing and assistance. Twenty-five women were on board in their night clothes. One died before reaching home, from the shock.

The body has yet been identified. No estimate can be made here of the loss of life. There is a general agreement among the survivors that out of a passenger list of more than three hundred a large number must have been lost, as the water around the burning steamer was alive with struggling people clinging to ropes and every conceivable thing. Most of the women brought here were in the water several hours. One lady had about $3,000 in her valise, which was lost. Two ladies on the steamer Stonington died after being picked up. Their remains await identification. It is feared that most of the passengers who were in berths below the main deck did not have time to save themselves. The bow of the Stonington was knocked off.

The Narragansett was provided with seven metallic life boats and three patent life rafts. The Stonington had an equal number, and the City of New York had eight life boats and rafts. All this life-saving apparatus was at once put into use. Before the first boat load had been sent off the fire broke through the main deck, and in a very short time the whole lower deck was afire. The scene was one of indescribable terror. The few previously calm now became panicky. One man shot himself in his frenzy, and in the ladies' cabin more than a score of women lay in a swoon. The cries of terror and distress were agonizing. The officers of the Narragansett say that about two hundred persons were put aboard the New York, and fifty aboard the Stonington. As the passenger list was lost there is no way of learning the names of the drowned.

Just as the last boat left the Narragansett, the fire burst forth on the hurricane deck. In twenty minutes after the collision the Narragansett sank. The upper part of the hog frame, walking beam and masts are out of the water. Her starboard hog frame is badly burned, and all the wood work of the upper decks, save the port hog frame, burned away. She lies in about thirty feet of water. A wrecking steamer was dispatched to the scene of the disaster from New London, this morning, and divers will begin work to-morrow, probably.

Five bodies were recovered from the wreck to day, four men and one child, the latter badly burned in the face. Large quantities of stuff floated from the wreck to day, and was secured this morning. The keeper of the North Dumpling Light house picked up a metallic life boat, bottom up containing a number of life preservers marked Narragansett. It is supposed the boat was over crowded and upset, and all were drowned. It is thought when the divers penetrate the cabins many bodies will be discovered. Allowing for exaggerations, it is believed the total loss will be about fifty.

WILMINGTON, Del., June 13—Ex-Senator James A. Bayard died this morning, after being unconscious several hours. He has been sinking several days. Death was hastened by a fall received as he was descending the stairs last Thursday week. There were present at the time of his death his son, Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, Dr. J. K. Kane and wife, daughter of the

A DELIBERATE SUICIDE.
BIGGING for Dusky Diamonds.
A REPUBLICAN representative visited Frank Frorer's Decatur coal shaft this forenoon and found everything moving along briskly and smoothly. The old shaft which caved in on account of the unruly state of the water, is a total wreck, but the new shaft which is already sunk to a depth of 68 feet, looks neat as a new pin. New methods were adopted in putting in the curbing in the new shaft, and little or no danger of another break up is apprehended. Saturday night 20 feet of water flooded into the new shaft inside of thirty minutes, and the engine was kept running all of Sunday pumping out the overflow. It is known that the water came from the vein which filled the old shaft, as the water in that hole lowered about 30 feet while the new shaft filled up. With the improved machinery now in use, Mr. Frorer has the water under complete control. The number of men employed in sinking the shaft is sixteen, and each receives 174 cents per hour for work done, or $1.75 per day. The men are divided up into three "shifts," and each gang are down in the hole or at the top five hours at a stretch. It takes the men from one to two hours to excavate 12 inches from the bottom of the shaft, but it takes several hours to put in the curbing timbers, each of which is 10 feet long, 6 inches thick and 10 inches wide. As the timbers are put together they are tarred, thus preventing the water from running through the crevices and trickling down the sides of the shaft. The work is progressing as rapidly as possible, and though it will be many moons before a paying vein of coal is struck, still our people will watch the progress of this most important undertaking with the deepest interest, and when Frorer strikes the hoped for bonanza, Decatur will sing his praises and do the handsome by him.

Tragic Ending of a Country Love Affair—Death of Lafayette Baum—His Last Words to His Love, Parents and Brothers—Verdict of the Coroner's Jury.

It is an old and doubtless correct saying that the "course of true love never did run smooth," and the tragic ending of a love affair near Hervey City, in this county, on Sunday forenoon, is another evidence of the truth of this old adage. Lafayette W. Baum, aged 21 years, tall, well built, good-looking, and industrious, the son of Mr. Israel Baum, loved Miss Mary Chick, the dark-haired daughter of Mrs. Edward Tucker, a neighbor, devoutly and well. Mary lived about a half mile east of Mr. Baum's home, and Lafayette being employed by Mrs. Tucker to work on her place, had been paying marked attention to Mary for over one year. But it appears that Mary did not love Lafayette as dearly as he did, as may be observed on perusing the letter given below. Lafayette became desperate, and because Mary refused to return his affection and give him her hand in marriage he resolved to take his life. Saturday night, we learn, the lover paid Mary a visit, but what passed between them will probably remain forever locked within the breast of the young lady. Lafayette borrowed a .32-caliber revolver of Daniel Foust, a young man employed by O. L. Kendall, and then went home downcast and disconsolate. As he entered the house he asked his mother where his father was and then went up stairs into his room. Before the coroner's jury the mother testified that after her son had gone up stairs she heard him walking from one room to another, back and forth, and in about 15 minutes she heard the report of a pistol. In great alarm the mother ran up stairs as quickly as possible, and found her son lying on his back on a bed with his life-blood flowing from his right temple. A pistol was lying near his left side. He did not speak or seem to breathe. The mother in her great distress went down stairs, and was gone about a minute. When she went back the thought she saw him breathe once, and then he died.

It is intended to make the Turner Garden of Decatur as popular as the Central Park of Peoria, but it is known that it is an imperative order that none but members of the society and invited friends of the organization will be admitted.

A WELL attended meeting of the Decatur Art Class was held at the residence of Mrs. R. J. Oglesby on Saturday afternoon, and after a very interesting session, it was voted to adjourn until after the heated term. The next meeting will be held at the residence of Mrs. James Millikin in September. In this connection we will state that in our published list of names of members of the class which appeared some days ago, we unintentionally omitted the name of Mrs. T. T. Roberts. She is one of the most active and enthusiastic members of the class and takes a deep interest in everything connected with it.

At the meeting of the Macon county democratic central committee, held Saturday afternoon, Charles P. Housum was elected permanent chairman in place of I. A. Buckingham, who tendered his resignation, and J. M. Rainey was chosen treasurer. From present indications it appears that the mossbacks intend making a vigorous fight in the county this campaign, and it behoves every republican to stand on guard and cast his ballot in November.

THE VERDICT.
In the matter of the inquisition on the body of L. W. Baum, deceased, held at his father's house, on the 13th day of June, 1880, we, the undersigned jurors, sworn to inquire of the death of L. W. Baum, son of the above, do find that he came to his death by receiving a shot from a pistol held in his own hand.

D. W. STEGEMERT, foreman.
O. L. KENDALL.
D. B. DONER.
W. H. MCKINNEY.
MOSES BAKER.
W. H. BURNOW.

The mother of the girl in this case is the wife of Edward Tucker, brother of John Tucker, the policeman, of this city. Ed. it will be remembered, assaulted D. W. Stegemert near Hervey City during the winter of '78, and we state this fact in order that our readers may recall the family. Mary Chick was present at the coroner's inquest and appeared to take the death of Lafayette very much to heart, though she suppressed her feelings as much as she could. She was not permitted to read the letter left for her until the jury had opened it and perused its contents. She begged to be allowed to read it, and it was then returned to Coroner Dunne who, as by law required, is obliged to file all papers offered in evidence at inquests with the county clerk.

Lafayette Baum was an honest hearted, hardworking young farmer, and was well liked by all his companions, but it seems that Mary didn't take to him very well, or perhaps she was just playing with his affections. Why he should kill himself is to say the least of it, a little strange, particularly when there are as good fish in the sea as were ever caught, or words to that effect.

The funeral of the young man took place this forenoon, the remains being interred in the cemetery at Mt. Zion.

No Court this Week.
Sheriff Foremyer received a message from Judge Smith stating that he was too ill to attend to his duties in Decatur this week, and authorized the posting of the following notice which appears on the court house door:

"Notice is hereby given that the honorable circuit court of Macon county stands adjourned until Monday, June 21st, at 10 o'clock a. m., on account of the sickness of the presiding judge.
M. FOREMYER, Sheriff.
Per order of Judge Smith.
Decatur, Ill., June 14th, 1880."

We are not advised as to the nature of Judge Smith's illness, but presume it is nothing very serious as he hopes to be here next Monday.

JACK FORAN was on another bender Saturday and Sunday. Too much booze, or the lack of the whereabouts to buy the same, caused him to commit petit larceny Sunday evening, when he robbed a crippled barber named Hall of his kit of tools, consisting of a lot of razors, etc. Officer Mason promptly nabbed Foran, took the kit away from him and landed him in the cooler. Hall got his kit back this afternoon, and Justice Peake fined Foran heavily for his drunk and playful ness.
